Medical Department.

The next annual course of instruction in this Department (now in the thirty-ninth year of its existence) will commence on Monday, the 18th day of November,* 1872, and terminate on the second Saturday of March, 1873. Preliminary Lectures on Clinical Medicine and Surgery will be delivered in the amphitheatre of the Charity Hospital, beginning on the 15th of October, without any charge to students.

The means of teaching now at the command of the faculty are unsurpassed in the United States; and are quite as complete as those of many of the renowned schools of medicine abroad. As evidence of this, it may be stated that in addition to the regular didactic lectures given by the several Professors, there is attached to each separate chair, a Practical Department, in which students can observe and verify for themselves the facts inculcated and discussed in the lecture room. It is to this peculiar feature of the University, and its unequalled hospital advantages, that the faculty would direct the attention of those engaged in the study of medicine, or who, having graduated elsewhere, desire to perfect themselves in any particular branch of the profession.

It will be observed that Professor WARREN STONE, M. D., has retired from the school, and that Professor T. G. RICHARDSON, M. D., has been transferred to the Chair of Surgery.

Professor STONE's long and brilliant career as Professor of Surgery, the permanent influence for good which he has exerted upon the minds and hearts of the present generation of physicians in the South, and his exalted character as a man of integrity and honor, are too well known to require any commentary at the hands of his colleagues.

The vacancy created in the Anatomical Chair, by the transfer of Professor RICHARDSON, has been filled by the election of Professor SAMUEL LOGAN, M. D. Professor LOGAN is already widely and favorably known as a teacher through his connection with the New Orleans School of Medicine, and as a cultivated observer and accomplished writer by his numerous contributions to the current literature of the profession.

* In case an epidemic of yellow fever should occur during the summer, students may, nevertheless, have no hesitation in coming to the city at the time here designated. During the thirty-eight years of the existence of the institution no student has been known to die of yellow fever during attendance upon lectures.

DIDACTIC LECTURES.

Systematic Didactic instruction in the various branches will be given daily in the central building of the University, situated on Common street, between Baronne and Dryades streets. The means for illustrating this course consists of a large collection of natural anatomical pieces, prepared by, and under the immediate direction of the Professor of Anatomy; models in wood, wax, plaster, and papier maché of rare and beautiful workmanship, executed in London, Paris and Florence expressly for the University; a complete series of specimens in materia medica; surgical and obstetrical instruments and appliances; specimens in morbid anatomy; and an entire set of chemical and philosophical apparatus.

The Museum comprising these collections has been recently re-arranged and classified, and is accessible to students and visitors at all hours of the day.

LIBRARY AND READING ROOMS.

The large building known as the East Wing of the University, having been recently appropriated to and connected with the Medical Department, the Faculty have succeeded in establishing a Free Library and Reading Room for the use of students and physicians. The spacious hall selected for this purpose now contains a large collection of books already in possession of the college, which are thus made accessible to those who may desire to consult them.

CLINICAL INSTRUCTION

The act establishing the University of Louisiana gives the professors of the Medical Department the use of the Charity Hospital as a school of practical instruction.

The Charity Hospital contains nearly 700 beds, and received during the last year 6,637 patients. Its advantages for professional study are unequalled by any similar institution in this country. The medical, surgical and obstetric wards are visited by the respective professors in charge daily, from 8 to 10 o'clock A. M., at which time all the students are expected to attend and familiarize themselves, at the bed-side of the patients, with the diagnosis and treatment of all forms of injury and disease.

Special instruction is given to the candidates for graduation, who are for this purpose divided by the Dean of the Faculty into sections, and assigned to respective professors in charge of wards in the hospital. The sections thus formed interchange courses monthly to enable the candidates to enjoy equal advantages. Thoroughly competent Chiefs of Clinics will aid the Clinical Teachers in developing to its full extent this system of instruction. Students who are not candidates for graduation may make the daily hospital rounds with any of the clinical teachers. The following professors and their respective Chiefs of Clinics will be on duty during the ensuing session :

Prof. JAMES JONES, M. D.....	DR. JAMES JONES, JR.
“ T. G. RICHARDSON, M. D.....	DR. E. SOUCHON.
“ S. M. BEMISS, M. D.....	DR. THOMAS LAYTON.
“ F. HAWTHORN, M. D.....	DR. W. B. WATKINS.
“ JOSEPH JONES, M. D.....	DR. ARTHUR GRAILHE,
“ SAMUEL LOGAN, M. D.....	DR. A. W. DeROALDES,

Prof. JAMES JONES, M. D., will have charge of Obstetric wards, and provide the candidates with cases of labor whenever practicable.

The regular lectures at the hospital, on clinical medicine and surgery, and special pathological anatomy, are delivered in the amphitheatre on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, from 10 to 12 o'clock, A. M.

Post-mortem examinations are made in the presence of the Class.
